

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[162] A process automation system is described which includes a sense and response framework for receiving events in the process and initiating tasks in response to the received events. Execution of the scheduled tasks may in turn generate additional events that are received and responded to until all nodes in the flow have been completed.